PRESS RELEASE

On Tuesday evening, June 22, a large portion of Sioux County was affected by a series of thunderstorms that brought large amounts of rain, and the threat of tornados.

The storm front moved into Sioux County around 11:00 pm. The Orange City area received approximately four inches of rain in a very short period of time.

There have been several reports of flooded basements, as well as a few culverts being washed out during the storm. Several communities sounded their emergency sirens as there were reports of funnel clouds in the Maurice and Ireton areas; however there were no confirmed reports of tornados on the ground.

No injuries were reported due to the severe storms.
